the most effective way to make sure employees know how to work

Tell them what they did wrong and give them a warning.

Provide quality training on specific tasks and high-risk work activities.

Only hire experienced employees who know how to work safely in the first place.

Have employees read the 300 page company Health and Safety Manual before they start work.

85 and OSHA require employees to be trained. What's the best way an employee has completed training?

Ask them questions while they are working.

Watch them work and see if they do something wrong.

Provide documentation (e.g., certification).

Ask them if they have completed their training.
